ICP1 – Report

Description:

As part of basics of Web development, we have installed GitHub and VSCode in our respective laptops. GitHub is an online platform for version control and collaboration. It lets you and others work collaboratively on projects from anywhere. A GitHub account has been created under the account names: JVSPAVAN and VamsiAlapaty. We have cloned them into the local machine using GitHub desktop. Two folders have been created as Web and Mobile. VS code is a code editor where developers can do multiple operations like debugging, running tasks etc.

Inside the Web Folder, a html file named "index.html" has been created. We have placed a 'README.MD' file in the repository which explains briefly about the repo. As part of our ICP1, a wiki page has been generated in this repo. A new branch has created and pull request also been made. And an issue has been created describing the pull request so that all the collaborators of the git repo would be in sync with all the changes been made in the repo.

After all the changes the local repo has been synced with the source files by committing the changes and pushing them into the Git repo without any conflicts using GitHub desktop. As a team we have forked the Git repo through the GitHub website.
